

Attention Daisy Families!

As members of the youngest group of Girl Scouts you may have some questions about how it all works. Here are some answers to get you started!

What do Daisies do?

Girl Scout Daisies have fun and make new friends as they work on character building and leadership skills while earning petals, badges, fun patches, and other insignia that goes on their uniform.

Daisies also participate in fun events and activities with their troop throughout the year.

How can families support the troop?

Troop Leaders are volunteers and it takes other volunteers to help the troop run smoothly. Ask your Troop Leaders how you can become a registered Troop Helper. For example, you could help keep track of troop finances, research activities and field trips, lead a craft, help with snack time, share your skills and talents with the troop, or help at cookie booths.

What activities can Daisies participate in?

Daisies can participate with their troop or individually with parent supervision in age appropriate Service Unit and council sponsored events. Some examples are fun and educational day trips to an aquarium, museum, or fire station, as well as Service Unit encampments, summer camp, cookie sales program, and much more!

What's next after Daisies?

As Girl Scouts progress in experience and age, they can continue to do even more exciting things all the way through high school! Activities may include camping, horseback riding, traveling, learning to budget and manage money, developing leadership skills, working with the community while earning Girl Scout High Awards, and much more! Wait until you see what exciting things your daughter will do next as a Girl Scout Brownie!

Who do I go to for support & information?

Your Troop Leaders are always your first stop! They will know all the details about your troop. For further support you can contact the team of administrative volunteers that manage the Service Unit your troop is a part of. You may also contact your local council, Girl Scouts of West Central Florida, by email at CustomerConnections@gswcf.org, or by phone at 813-281-4475.
