Have you every traveled far away and knew it was going to be a special day? The sky was  _____ and the weather was  _____. So, I hopped out of bed, put on my ready to go! I went outside and there was Lupe.

Lupe lay flat on her back on the soft green grass. Well, she doesn't really have a back. She's a flower with lots of petals. She was so happy to see me because we were going on a fun road trip together.

Lupe!" "Can I help?" It was Zinni, our Spring-green zinnia friend. She did not hear, so Zinni peeked inside her car and saw comfy seats shaped like buckets. They were deep blue. Lupe slid out from under her car and stood up. "Zinni!" she said with surprise. "How long have you been here?" "Not long, Zinni said. What are you doing?" "I'm sprucing up my car and getting ready for a road trip." "Where to?" Zinni asked.

“Maine,” Lupe said. “That’s the place to be in summer! The days are warm and the nights are cool. Why don’t you join us?” Zinni was a little worried because of her petals and thought it would blow seeds around.

Lupe felt that was considerate of Zinni and said, “it’s okay. We can stop along the way and pick up your seeds and petals wherever we go.” “Count me in!” said Zinni.

Then, they saw their friend Clover and invited her on their trip to Maine. “Why Maine”, Clover asked. “For fresh air, cool nights, and wild Maine blueberries.” Lupe answered. “Plus, the Lupine Festival! My whole family is going.”

“That sounds like fun,” said Clover. “But Alaska is where I need to be. My cousin, White Sweetclover is in trouble there. She’s growing all over the place and kicking out all the other plants.”

“I have a cousin like that in California. Her name is Yellow Lupine.” Hey, come with me to Maine and then we’ll drive to Alaska together,” Lupe added. “We can stop in California on the way so you can meet Yellow Lupine!” “But, I promised my family we’d all go together,” Clover said. “Family is so important, and so are promises.”
